

Jeffrey Sachs, Director of the U.N. Millennium Project and Special Advisor to United Nations Secretary-General Kofi Annan on the Millennium Development Goals, speaks on “The End of Poverty” on Oct. 5, 2006, at the Ohio Union. About 750 people attended.

Richard Herrmann, Director of the Mershon Center for International Security Studies, introduced Jeffrey Sachs before the lecture.

Sachs laid out a blueprint to end poverty within our lifetimes, and told students who attended what they could do.

Amy Barnes, Assistant Director of First Year Experience Programs, presented a copy of Arc of Justice: A Saga of Race, Civil Rights, and Murder in the Jazz Age by Ohio State historian Kevin Boyle to Jeffrey Sachs.

Students invited by the Mershon Center, First Year Experience, and the Honors and Scholars program at Ohio State posed with Jeffrey Sachs at the reception.
